Dividend investing is a type of long-term investing that involves buying stocks in companies that pay regular dividends to their shareholders. Dividends are payments that companies make to their shareholders out of their profits. They are typically paid quarterly, and can provide a steady stream of income for investors.

Dividend investing is a great way to grow your wealth over time. Over the long term, dividend-paying stocks have outperformed non-dividend paying stocks.

There are a few things to keep in mind when you're investing in dividend-paying stocks.

- Invest for the long term. Dividend investing is a long-term strategy. You should expect to hold your stocks for at least five years, and preferably longer.
- Choose companies with a strong track record of paying dividends. You want to invest in companies that have a history of paying dividends, and that have a strong financial foundation. This will help you to avoid companies that may cut or eliminate their dividends in the future.
- Diversify your portfolio. Don't put all of your eggs in one basket. Instead, diversify your portfolio by investing in a variety of different dividend-paying stocks. This will help to reduce your risk.

Dividend investing is a great way to grow your wealth over time. By following these tips, you can get started on the path to financial success.
