They soon came across a group of friendly monkeys who were playing in the trees. Snow White and the dwarfs joined in the fun, and they all played and laughed together.

Later, they came to a river filled with crocodiles. The dwarfs were afraid to cross, but Snow White was not. She bravely stepped onto a log and floated across the river.

The dwarfs followed Snow White across the river, and they all made it safely to the other side.

As they continued their journey, they came to a clearing where they saw a beautiful waterfall. Snow White and the dwarfs decided to take a break and swim in the cool water.

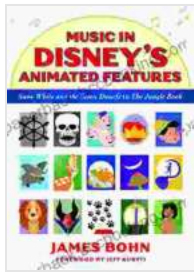

After their swim, they relaxed on the bank of the river and ate some of the fruit that they had picked in the jungle.

As the sun began to set, Snow White and the dwarfs decided to head back to their cottage in the forest.

They had all had a wonderful adventure in the jungle, and they couldn't wait to tell all their friends about it.
