From the echoes of its Civil War past to the vibrant rhythms of its present, Georgia's stories are as diverse as its landscape. Through the pages of this series, readers will encounter:

- The Trail of Tears and the Cherokee Nation: Explore the tragic history of the forced removal of Native Americans from their ancestral lands, as documented in Scott Reynolds Nelson's powerful narrative.

- Sherman's March to the Sea: Witness the devastation of Georgia during the Civil War through the eyes of historian John M. Coski, tracing the path of General William Tecumseh Sherman's infamous campaign.
- The Invention of Atlanta: Discover the rise of Atlanta from a humble railroad town to a thriving metropolis, chronicled by journalist Howard Zinn in his acclaimed work.
- Martin Luther King Jr. and the Civil Rights Movement: Experience the transformative leadership of Dr. King and the struggle for racial equality in Georgia, captured by David Garrow in his Pulitzer Prize-winning biography.
- Midnight in the Garden of Good and Evil: Immerse yourself in the enigmatic world of Savannah, as described by John Berendt in his bestselling true-crime masterpiece.
- The Warmth of Other Suns: Follow the migration of African Americans from the Jim Crow South to Northern cities, as recounted by Pulitzer Prize-winner Isabel Wilkerson.

Beyond its historical significance, Georgia is also a vibrant cultural tapestry. The series delves into the state's rich literary heritage, showcasing works by renowned authors such as Flannery O'Connor, Alice Walker, and Carson McCullers. These writers have captured the essence of Georgia's spirit, its complex social dynamics, and its unique sense of place.

Through evocative storytelling and rigorous research, the 'Georgia in Literary Nonfiction' series offers a multifaceted perspective on the Peach

State. It invites readers to engage with Georgia's past, present, and future, fostering a deeper understanding of its complexities and its enduring allure.
